“ Productivity Commission“- a contradiction in terms.

Basically this scheme is for yet another layer of taxpayer-funded, bureaucratic appointees (inevitably yet more jobs for the girls and boys – those who will fall into line) in relation to the socialist government’s already highly damaging proposals with regard to how the country should be run.

The going call for ratepayers’ revolt all over the country extends to local governments being misled by shockingly under-informed central government’s ridiculous emphasis on a supposedly “climate emergency” - when in fact all the current findings point to absolutely no emergency – e.g. Check this and other well-respected websites.

As one commentator has put it, any new commission will basically serve as a haven for yet more of job-preserving and job-multiplying fellow travellers.

Moreover, if our shockingly under-informed present coalition government succeeded in its ideological nonsense of eventually banning all CO2 emissions - not only would this irrationality cost taxpayers, ratepayers, and businesses even more than the country is being bled at present. It is acknowledged that it would not make one bit of difference to the amount of CO2 in the atmosphere...

That this global cult has been so eagerly bought into is apparently basically because it gives central and local governments the opportunities to raise yet more taxes and exercise more control over New Zealanders

It is also highly significant, for example, that the present Mayor of Nelson recently actually embraced neo-Marxist members of the anarchist members of Extinction Rebellion - a disreputable organisation with a record of deliberately planned disruption of roads, tunnels, etc in the UK, in order to help destroy the foundations of Western democracy.

Moreover, it was apparently on their recommendation that she has declared Nelson to be in a state of climate emergency - which is utterly farcical.

Like other of this self-willed Mayor’s initiative, it is now going to cost us a great deal - as she has diverted ratepayers' funding into this ridiculous new position and the extended bureaucracy which will prop it up. Moreover, ratepayers were not given the opportunity to call for a balanced hearing and to provide input into this totally unnecessary proposal.

Although it is obvious that the profligate spending by the Nelson City Council needs to be challenged - yet another organisation demanding still more contributions from taxpayers and ratepayers is not the answer. This has to be in the growing opposition by New Zealanders nationwide to the assumption by local bodies and by the government that they are put there to rule the people.

In actual fact they are there to carry out the wishes of the people.

The “Productivity Commission recommends a new layer of government overlapping local and central, to address climate change and other problems –and a new layer of taxes.

Most New Zealanders aware of what is at stake would be very much opposed to this thinking - and utterly reject its proposals. Its very name is an oxymoron.
